The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

- (b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.
- (e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1, 2 and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Morita et al (US 5,708,057).

Morita et al teach a silicone-modified water-based coating composition comprising silicone rubber particles having an average size of 1 to 100 μ m in abstract and claims 1 and 5. For example, Reference Example 4 shows silicone rubber particles having an average diameter of 5 μ m. It is well known in the art that said average diameter is an average among various particles, some have smaller diameter and some have larger diameter. Thus, a fraction (1 wt% for example) of Reference Example 4 would inherently have some particles having an average diameter of less than 4 μ m absent particular amount and/or fraction of the recited particles. Thus, the instant invention lacks novelty.

Claims 1, 2 and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Kuwata et al (US 5,871,761).

Kuwata et al teach a silicone-modified water-based coating composition comprising silicone rubber particles having an average size of 0.1 to 100 μ m in abstract and claim 1. For example, the dispersion-2 shows silicone rubber particles having an average diameter of 4 μ m. It is well known in the art that said average diameter is an average value among various particles having different diameters, some have smaller diameter and some have larger diameter. Thus, a fraction (1 wt% for example) of said dispersion-2 would inherently have some particles having an average diameter of less than 4 μ m absent particular amount and/or fraction of the recited particles. Thus, the instant invention lacks novelty.

Claims 1, 2 and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Blackwood et al (US 6,534,126).

Blackwood et al teach a silicone-modified water-based coating composition comprising silicone rubber particles having an average size of 0.1 to 500 μ m in abstract and claim 1. For example, example 1 shows silicone rubber particles having an average diameter of 5 μ m. It is well known in the art that said average diameter is an average value among various particles having different diameters, some have smaller diameter and some have larger diameter. Thus, a fraction (1 wt% for example) of said example 1 would inherently have some particles having an average diameter of less than 4 μ m absent particular amount and/or fraction of the recited particles. Thus, the instant invention lacks novelty.

Claims 1, 2 and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Morita et al (US 6,476,123).

Morita et al teach a silicone-modified water-based coating composition comprising silicone rubber particles having an average size of 0.1 to 500 μ m in abstract and claim 1. For example, example 2 shows silicone rubber particles having an average diameter of 4 μ m. It is well known in the art that said average diameter is an average value among various particles having different diameters, some have smaller diameter and some have larger diameter. Thus, a fraction (1 wt% for example) of said example 1 would inherently have some particles having an average diameter of less than 4 μ m absent particular amount and/or fraction of the recited particles. Thus, the instant invention lacks novelty.

Claim 3 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
